This annual course addresses a wide range of topics in anatomic pathology and explores new and evolving areas in the diagnosis and analysis of disease. It aims to provide the latest practical and theoretical information that will aid the practicing pathologist in solving those problems most often encountered in the anatomic pathology laboratory.

An audience response system will facilitate questions and discussion. A complete course syllabus will be provided for all participants. Participants will be able to register for either the entire three-day meeting or for any combination of individual one-day blocks.

OVERALL OBJECTIVES:

To identify areas of diagnostic difficulties and challenges in everyday surgical pathology and cytopathology practice, and to provide expert insight on selected topics through didactic lectures, tutorial sessions and interactive reviews. Each day's lectures are centered on a specialty theme: breast pathology (Thursday); gynecologic pathology (Friday); and genitourinary pathology (Saturday). Lunchtime video tutorials cover a larger spectrum of specialties in surgical pathology.

This year the course will offer a new method of educational activity in the form of Self-Assessment Modules (SAM). Participants can receive additional CME credit by taking a multiple choice exam based on content presented earlier in the day. The moderators will then discuss the questions and answers with the audience. Audience members are encouraged to engage the moderators with their own questions during this review.

We expect that at the end of this course, the participants will be able to:

1. Identify common mistakes and pitfalls in the diagnosis of breast, gynecologic and genitourinary diseases in everyday surgical pathology
2. Improve competence in recognition of mimickers of specific diseases in each specialty and improve ability to interpret special studies for more effective differential diagnosis
3. Improve understanding of the histopathological characteristics of diseases that will foster unequivocal diagnosis
4. Identify new and additional components of the pathology report that will improve the clinical value of the pathology report
5. Integrate recent changes/modifications in the pathological classification of diseases or lesions to affect improved patient outcomes.
Cytology Seminar

Wednesday, June 2, 2010  Enrollment in this seminar is limited to 18 persons and will be determined on a first-come, first-served basis. At the end of the cytopathology course, the learner will be able to identify common problem areas in gynecological and non-gynecological cytology specimens, recognize potential pitfalls, develop a differential diagnosis, and a management plan. The learner will be able to identify the practical benefit and interpretation of special techniques including immunohistochemistry and molecular analyses. The seminar will be held on the University of California, San Francisco campus in rooms HSW-532 and M-557. Shuttle service will be provided between the Hotel Nikko and UCSF.

Seminar Registration Fee: $250
Please call the registration office (415-476-5808) to verify space is available before sending payment for the Cytology Seminar. Online registration will be closed once the seminar is full.

HENRY MOON LECTURER

Christopher P. Crum, MD
Professor, Department of Pathology, Harvard Medical School

Dr. Christopher P. Crum, MD, is a professor of pathology at the Harvard Medical School and has completed his pathology residency in the same institution. He later did a fellowship at Columbia University College of Physicians & Surgeons. He later joined the faculty at the Department of Pathology, Harvard Medical School, where he currently serves as the Director of Women’s and Perinatal Pathology. His most recent studies have concentrated on a novel pathway and precursor lesion for ovarian serous carcinogenesis that arises in the distal fallopian tube. He has been testing the hypothesis that many cases of the most lethal form of ovarian cancer, ovarian surface or peritoneal serous carcinoma, originates from the tubal fimbria. He developed a protocol for sectioning and extensively examining the fimbriated end in order to test his hypothesis.
The University of California, San Francisco School of Medicine (UCSF) is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

UCSF designates this educational activity for a maximum of XXX AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™, the Cytology Workshop (MAP1001B) is designated XXX Category 1 Credits™. Each optional lunch tutorial is designated 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Each physician should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity. This CME activity meets the requirements under California Assembly Bill 1195, continuing education and cultural and linguistic competency.
